Money Transmitter Services Secured for AirPocket – Accelerates Path to Market

- digitalBTC has signed an agreement with U.S. based payments company, CoinX to provide money transmitter services to its AirPocket product in the U.S.
- Agreement validates the AirPocket product and significantly accelerates the development and commercialisation of the product
- Leverages an already established and licensed banking relationship to reduce AirPocket's path to market by two years
- CoinX is an established fintech company with access to licenses in 40 U.S. States, enabling AirPocket to remit funds widely
- Agreement covers all AirPocket's banking transfers within the U.S., a key requirement ahead of a public beta launch
- The Company is also seeking additional banking partners within Latin America and the Caribbean

Digital payments company Digital CC Limited (trading as digitalBTC, ASX:DCC and 'the Company') is pleased to announce it has entered into a Master Services agreement with CoinX to leverage its banking licenses within the U.S.

The agreement is for an initial two years and as part of the agreement CoinX will provide AirPocket access to money transmitter services in 40 States within the U.S.

CoinX is a U.S. based fintech company specialising in domestic and international payment processing and transfer services, such as remittances to third party financial services and payments companies for onward settlement.

As part of the agreement AirPocket has been appointed as an agent authorised to engage in money transmission services within licensed states, significantly accelerating AirPocket's path to market and reducing it by up to two years.

Importantly the agreement enables AirPocket to commence remittance transfers in the U.S., a key requirement for the Company ahead of a public beta launch.

CoinX money transmitter services are currently only provided to seven clients and digitalBTC will be the eighth to join the exclusive list of companies.

However, CoinX's reach is much wider, indirectly servicing 11,000 firms including Banks, financial institutions, traditional money transfer services, money services businesses, Payment Services Providers, Payment Network Operators, Exchanges, and MTOs/MNO through its existing seven exclusive partners.

Compared to other companies providing payment processing and transfer services in the U.S., CoinX's licenses and coverage is substantially ahead of its peers.

Zhenya Tsvetnenko, Executive Chairman, digitalBTC commented:

“This agreement is a key milestone for AirPocket and significantly accelerates our path to market, reducing it by up to two years. Leveraging the money transfer license from CoinX provides us with the ability to transmit remittances across 40 States in the U.S., a key market for AirPocket and one of our initial markets for the beta launch.”
