

Etherparty's FUEL token now listed on the ACX exchange

December 14, 2017, Vancouver, B.C. - DigitalX is pleased to announce the easy-to-use smart contracts creation platform Etherparty (FUEL token) will be listed on the Australian Cryptocurrency exchange (ACX www.acx.io) effective December 18, 2017. This listing is part of a larger growth strategy for Etherparty to expand and further develop their product in the coming months.

Etherparty is a blockchain technology company that develops smart contract applications, including a smart contract creation platform, that recently became the second largest ICO in Canada. At their core, it is a platform that enables anyone to harness the power of distributed computing.

"It is a really important step for Etherparty to be working with industry leaders like ACX exchange," said Kevin Hobbs, Etherparty CEO. "We have been hard at work since raising over $33 Million USD and distributing FUEL to the contributors".

"Etherparty is a serious player in the cryptocurrency space that everyone should watch," said Jin Chen from ACX, "We are pleased to be listing FUEL on our exchange."
